Passionate full stack web developer with a Web Development Certificate from University of California, Los Angeles. Strong ability to design websites utilizing a combination of strong communication, analytical skills, research and problem solving skills. Other newly developed skills in Javascript, React, and responsive web design. Ability to work in a fast paced team environment and developing solutions through collaborating and communication. Known as a creative problem solver with a focus on developing data-bases and back-end development. With each project I have created my aim is to push myself to learn as much as I can and create meaningful web applications. Excited to leverage my skills and help to build responsive websites.
